

Audrey G. Tuckerman
First Vice President, Investments
Merrill Lynch

Audrey Tuckerman is a First Vice President of Investments at Merrill Lynch where she, along with the Cename Team, delivers tailored investment solutions and comprehensive wealth planning as advocates for successful families and businesses. Audrey sits on the Merrill Lynch Chairman's Council and has won the Financial Advisor of the Year award. Because of her open and honest leadership style that engenders confidence and success, Audrey has been the recipient of several awards: Business First of Columbus Top 40 Business Leaders Under 40; The Columbus Jewish Federation Young Leadership Award; and the United Way's Young Leadership Award.

From early in her career, Audrey Tuckerman has been known as one of Columbus' most exuberant and effective leaders. As Chair of the YWCA Board of Trustees, she led the capital campaign to raise $6.5 million dollars so that homeless families could have a place to recover and transition to permanent housing. To complete this 2-year, project, Audrey had to build community support in addition to raising money. She devoted countless hours to conducting tours of the previous facility, hosting fundraising events in her home, and leading strategic and political meetings. The YWCA is fortunate that she was tireless in her devotion to this cause because the Family Center is now recognized as a national model of excellence. Audrey's commitment did not end after the center was built; she and her family can be found volunteering or serving meals, especially at Thanksgiving breakfast every year.

Having served on several boards including OSU Hillel Foundation, the Jewish Community Center and the Columbus Jewish Foundation, Audrey has been an active leader in the Jewish community. She currently sits on the Executive Board of the Columbus Jewish Federation and serves as the Vice-Chair of Leadership Development and Constituent Engagement and Jewish Family Services. Audrey is also on the Board of Directors for the Center for Child and Family Advocacy where she raises money to help abused children and women experiencing domestic violence.

A mother of three children – Jake (14), Sammy (12), Maddie (9) – Audrey spends most of her free time as a full-time sports fan. When she isn't cheering her kids on in soccer or basketball, Audrey is skiing with them in Colorado or running on the beaches in Florida.

Audrey hopes that her legacy will be leading people to help those who can't help themselves. Everyday she tries to make the community a better place whether that's by taking her kids to the Family Center or by standing up for those who need a champion.
